A Better Policy

There is a certain element in this town who invariably call on the editor of this paper to boost this scheme and that with his pap er without charge, then straightway take the funds of the treasury and have the printing bill executed in a foreign town. If that's their gauge of honesty we serve notice now on all such that the publicity you get from this paper will be paid for, and the cause must deserve real merit to even justify mention. This imposition will not be practiced on us again if we know it.

How can we build a town without the help of one an ther. Make a resolution now to buy at the home town stores. If the place is good enough to live in it is good enough for all purposes; have business relations with friends; we want the dollars we spend to stay in town and help to build it up; our produce is sold to our merchais and our townspeopl consume it; our merchants share the burdens of your taxes, they support your schools, churches, and help protect your homes, when misfortunes overtake you he shares your sorrow and extends you aid in time of need. That's what your county paper is doing. Be honest with yourself and your town and watch it grow. Throw away your knocker and resolve to be honest and knock no more.

Walter Mapp Talks

Senator Mapp announces position on some important State issues. After all, it will be issues and not men. For the people are more interested in issues than the fortunes of men.

The Senator is the daddy of the Mapp prohibition law and stands for enforcement a n d against modifying it so that light wine and beers may be had.

He would abolish the fee system. It is vicious in practice and the whole scheme of compensating public servants is wrong he asserts.

Virginia has too many officers, both State and local, too many departments duplicating a n d over-laping each other; 24 administrative officers and 66 administrative boards, besides the great number appointed by the Governor is evidence of the need of reform and a saving to the State. With the estimate of $25,000,000 for State government and $75,000,000 annually for local governments is too high for our needs and constitutes too great a burden for our tax-payers to carry.

Our tax system is little short of a governmental disgrace, and favors a State Tax Board to serve all the time to equalize taxation. With proper laws the State would have ample revenue for her progressive needs without carrying a large deficit as at present. He favors the repeal of the tax on bank deposits. He was in favor of banding and building the roads.

ELECTION LAWS

He says: If our constitution and election laws were drafted with a view of discounting and limiting the electorate, instead of encouraging and increasing it, within safeguarded limits, the drafters have succeeded in their purpose.

The theory of a democracy is that the more persons that vote the better—that intelligent mass judgment and mass patriotism are desirable. In practice, the converse seems to have been the aim and policy of the controlling element of our lawmakers. Certain it is that voters generally are impatient of our intricate voting machinery, and that a decreasing percentage of our citizenship (with due allowance for the enfranchisement of women) is exercising the right of suffrage. Virginia's ratio of voters to population is fourth from the bottom in the 48 states.

This condition needs remedying. The present indifference to a non-participation in our elections, by so large a percentage of our citizens, is a serious menace to our d mocracy.

Our whole voting machinery should be revised and simplified, and our general elections should be held at the same time of the national elections, when possible, thereby reducing the number.

The Senator will later on discuss the departments of State.

The candidate has a number of friends here especially among the ladies, and if they organize and call on the White Ribboner's to show their faith by works he will get a consiserable vote.

Live Merchants

Readers of this paper will take notice of the live merchants who are offering inducements to them to trade at home in and out of season.

H. M. BURGE

This enterprising young man has won his spurs and no town has a livelier wire than he. With a great stock and polite assistants shoppers will enjoy trading here.

Power From Volcanoes.

In Italy and some of the volcanic districts of the Pacific the steam, power issuing from volcanoes has been harnessed for engineering purposes. The people of the Tuscan town of Larderello light their streets and their homes and do their cooking by means of volcanic steam pressure, which generates enough heat to cook a joint in less than half an hour.

The bad corner in town at Court and Main Streets was adjusted today in company with the Board of Supervisors and the state Highway Department. Court Street is to be made straight to and connect up with the railroad crossing, which is highly appreciated by a large part of our citizens and especially those of Southside district. Everybody is pleased at the adjustment of this ugly situation in our town and we wish to congratulate the people and the Board in their wisdom in getting rid of so dangerous a matter to the public.

VERA

The Community League of Vera High School held a meeting on December 6th at the Vera High School. A large crowd attended and many new members were enrolled. A nice program was given by the children of the school.

I am glad to see so much interest taken in this work. I wish you God Speed and much success in the future.

The refreshments served were delicious and much enjoyed by all. We were highly entertained by some splendid string music rendered by Messrs. Ben Abbitt, George Abbitt, Charlie Nowlin and Walter Abbitt. Come to our next meeting and help us. We need the co-operation of every one in this community.
